It's Not Too Late to Join the Summer Stars Reading Adventure!

There's still time for children across County Wexford to sign up for Summer Stars, the free national summer reading programme from public libraries, running until the end of August.

Children are invited to enjoy a summer of reading and listening with free access to thousands of books, eBooks, eAudiobooks, graphic novels, comics and magazines from Wexford Libraries in Wexford, Enniscorthy, New Ross, Bunclody and Gorey. Best of all, Summer Stars is non-competitive – every child who reads even one book or eBook is considered to have successfully completed the programme.

Taking part is easy: simply visit your local library and register your child. Young readers can track their progress, enjoy fun library events and activities, and receive a certificate of participation at the end of the summer. There may even be some rewards along the way!

Reading over the summer helps children maintain and improve their literacy skills before returning to school, while also encouraging a lifelong love of books and stories. Plus, by reading books throughout the summer, children can be entered into prize draws to win fantastic rewards, including cinema vouchers, passes to the Irish National Heritage Park and more.

Visit your local Wexford Library today and start your Summer Stars Reading Adventure!

► Little Library Launch

We are delighted to have finally launched our Tiny Little Library initiative in SCBU, Wexford General Hospital. Please share. Photo courtesy of Jim Campbell Photography.

Tiny Little Library Launches at Wexford General Hospital SCBU to Support Families of Premature Babies.

Friday 31st July 2026 saw the launch of Tiny Little Library at the Special Care Baby Unit (SCBU) in Wexford General Hospital, bringing the power of stories, language and connection to some of the county's smallest and most vulnerable babies.

Tiny Little Library is an innovative partnership between Wexford Library Service and the neonatal team at Wexford General Hospital. The initiative provides a collection of carefully selected books that parents can read aloud to their premature and hospitalised babies, helping families bond during what can be a challenging and emotional time.

Research has shown that reading and talking to babies in neonatal care can have a significant impact on their development. It can support early brain and language development while strengthening the bond between parent and baby.

Early language experiences are particularly important for premature babies. Hearing a parent's voice helps support early brain development, language growth and emotional bonding, while also helping parents build confidence in their relationship with their baby.

The Tiny Little Library collection in Wexford SCBU will give families access to specially chosen books designed to be read aloud, creating opportunities for comfort, connection and communication from the earliest days of life. The initiative also links families with their local public library, ensuring continued access to books, resources and support after their baby returns home.

Cathaoirleach Cllr. Lisa McDonald said:

"Tiny Little Library provides a simple but powerful way for parents to spend time with their baby, using their voice, stories and books to nurture connection, comfort and development. We are delighted to work with Wexford General Hospital SCBU on this worthwhile initiative."

Yvonne Smith, Senior Executive Librarian said:

"A love of reading starts with a shared story. We are proud to support families in the SCBU with this Tiny Little Library, where every book opens a world of possibilities. This Tiny Little Library is a celebration of reading, family, and the power of books to comfort, inspire, and connect us."

Caroline Manley, SCBU, Wexford General Hospital said:

"Every interaction matters for babies in neonatal care. Reading aloud gives parents a meaningful role in their baby's care journey while supporting early communication and bonding. We are delighted to partner with Wexford Library Service on this important initiative."

Tiny Little Library builds on successful programmes already operating in some neonatal units around Ireland as a partnership with hospitals and public libraries to support families from the very start of their child's life through books, language and relationships.

PUBLIC CONSULTATION

► Central Statistics Office (CSO)'s Public Consultation on Census Data Outputs

The Central Statistics Office (CSO)'s Public Consultation on Census Data Outputs is now live and we are asking the views of data users on the outputs that will be produced in 2027/2028, following next year's census. This consultation will close on 18 September 2027.

The CSO is inviting you and your organisation (if you represent one) to tell us your data requirements and suggestions for Census 2027 outputs. We are also seeking feedback from users on several specific planned developments. CSO will examine all submissions made as part of this consultation and use them to inform its Census 2027 Dissemination Strategy, which will be published on www.cso.ie prior to Census 2027.

We are sending you this email as you have previously been in contact with us regarding census data. If you are part of an organisation and have colleagues within your organisation or an associated organisation with an interest in Census data, we would be grateful if you could share this email with them also.

To participate in the consultation process, please visit the CSO website at https://launch.survey.cso.ie/public-survey-cookie?surveyid=914_26

All comments are welcome, both specific and general.

Background

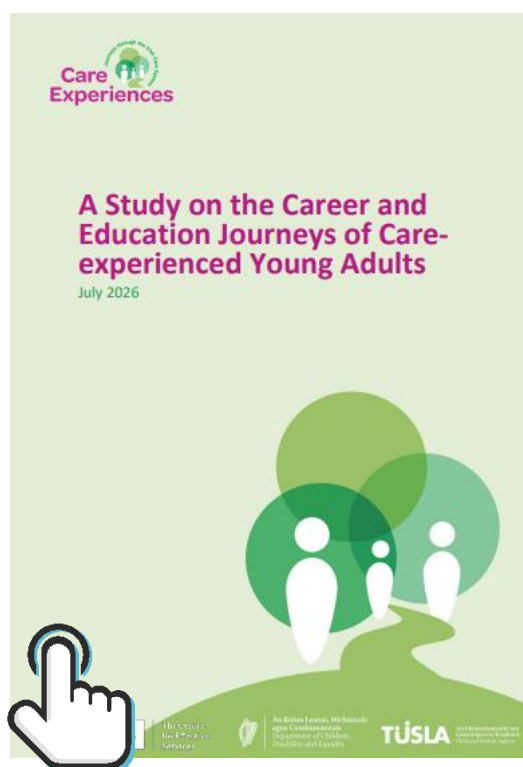

Before each census, CSO engages in an extensive public consultation process comprised of two elements. The first part of this consultation was on the content of Census 2027, and this took place in 2022-2023. Following the consultation, a Census Advisory Group (CAG) of expert users was convened to assist CSO in deciding which new and changed questions should be tested as part of a Pilot Survey, which was held in September 2024. Following analysis of the Pilot results by the CSO, the CAG reconvened in June 2025 and agreed the set of questions to be recommended for inclusion in Census 2027. Government subsequently approved Census 2027 in November 2025. The second element of this process is this current Public Consultation on Census 2027 Data Outputs.
